From the REPERTORY.

No. III.

The sufficiency of the British finances, to supply the enormous expenditures of the war, is usually the first inquiry for its solution. We cannot, however, refrain from remarking, that the bankruptcy of the French government has been incessantly expected to prove the boundary of the French power. It has happened, on the contrary, that power has made its own resources. No government, certainly no arbitrary government, will sit still and die for want of means, when they are to be found within its grasp. It will put forth the hand of violent injustice and reach them. The rulers of France found wealth enough within and without, and they have never hesitated to use it. Their armies flourished while their artizans starved, and their farmers despoiled. The decline of all employments but that of arms, so far from stopping the course of their victories, materially contributed to accelerate it.

The free government of England is less disposed and less qualified for these extremes; but then it will not be equally under the necessity of resorting to them. The wealth of individuals is incalculable, and the machinery of the English laws and government for extracting it in loans and taxes, with some degree of equality, and without popular opposition, is probably adequate to a great annual augmentation. We forbear to say what is the utmost that machinery could effect. An urgent public necessity, so palpable as to confound all doubts and cavils, we should conceive would enable government to draw from the people larger supplies, by equal laws, than could be obtained by arbitrary violence. It is however, we confess, a frightful prospect for an honest English minister, that he must spend, for the public defence, more than he can raise by taxes. Hitherto, we believe he has not been able to produce by his ways and means more than thirty-five or forty millions sterling, nor to bring his expenditures under seventy.

In this extremity, some men have asked, whether the government ought not, without further hesitation, to sponge off their national debt. The Jacobin members of our administration will wonder, why they have delayed it so long. The English government would long trust and painfully try the public spirit of the nation, rather than destroy the debt. We have men in power, among us, who would sooner destroy any debt, public or private, than hazard their popularity; nay more, they would sponge off all debts for the sake of popularity. But in England nothing short of dire necessity will bring the rulers to touch the property, that has so long been confided to the safeguard of the public faith and morals; nor will they, of choice, withhold a penny of the interest.

It is true, necessity, though it is the tyrant's plea, is a sufficient one, when it is, for the best government. There is reasoning against necessity, but when there is any reasoning about its existence, manifest it does not exist. It not only its own law, but its own evidence, is like the fire, or flood, or pestilence, and renders doubt as much impossibility. Considering then, the sufficiency of the necessity to vindicate the withhold. The interest of the British national the public creditors, the fact that necessity exists is still to be made out. We already said this sober argument, taking out of a necessity is inadmissible. Though it is better the nation should perish than the nation, still it is true that the sponging off the debt is a measure of violence, which if the justification that an irresistible ty can afford. Necessity is a law that makes all other laws silent. It would be the stoppage of the interest of the national debt. It is equally manifest that a short of actual necessity will justify an act.

While the English government is regular course of paying the interest, only inconvenient to proceed in that because new expences arise, and unpopular task to provide taxes to them, it is absolutely a relinquish the plea of necessity, to pretend government is forced to stop the so little of the difficulties of government and nation, because of them, that it is not ours for any American speculate upon the proper degree of which they should impose a measure of ability or patience pay them. Nevertheless, and we presume to hope it is the case, that by new arrangements of the land tax, by the assessed taxes, by improvements in the mode of collection of the imposts and by a reform of the all consuming poor rates, the public revenue may be even yet considerably augmented. The power to tax no doubt has its limits, and when a government has multiplied its taxes till it has reached them, a new imposition will only give a new form to the public receipts, without adding to their amount. We may be mistaken, but we sincerely hope it will prove, that the wealth of the English subjects is abundantly adequate to all the enormous expenditures of this necessary war. The time we believe has come to justify all practicable reforms of expenditure and improvements of the revenue, rather than a resort to violent and arbitrary remedies of any sort; especially such as sponging off the debt.

For it can scarcely escape remark, that Great Britain has been, from the first, contending against revolutionary principles. How can Great Britain, the champion of faith and law and order, with consistency or advantage, adopt as a remedy the very measure that is the first badge and sure forerunner of the evil.

For what is revolution? What is its favorite work, but first, and with most malignant ardor, to destroy what faith and law and morals have established and guarded? The English debt of six hundred millions sterling is spread all over the kingdom; it has taken root for a century. To pluck that root from the soil, we believe, would shake the security of all property in the event, possibly it might subvert the monarchy.

When the convenience of relieving the nation from this mountain of debt is once admitted, where will the government stop? Will not the progress be, as in France, to make one convenient sacrifice a precedent and argument for another? The clergy will stand next, on the black list: the nobles will follow. Will the many continue patient under the pressure of taxes, when the plunder of the few is so familiar a substitute? In a revolution, as in a shipwreck, one part of the crew is kept alive by eating the other.

The national debt is in fact private property. We cannot see why the public should seize and appropriate to itself that description of private property, rather than the ships in the Thames, or the goods in Bond street. The seizure may be less unpopular, and may be more surely carried into effect, than the capture of the ships or goods; but we cannot see that the plea of necessity will better justify the act, in one case than the other. Indeed the preference seems to be due to the property in the funds, as the government has solemnly renounced its power of control over it, and chosen to stand in no other relation to the owner of stock, than as an equal contracting party.

To those, however, who may consider this last idea a mere refinement, too flimsy to be examined or regarded, when the existence of a nation is at stake, another reflection may be suggested.

Many persons may be led, by their abhorrence of Jacobinism and of French tyranny, to think favorably of sponging off the tremendous mass of English debt, which cripples all their exertions in the war. England once free from this millstone, they imagine, would be in no danger of sinking. The usefulness of such an act of injustice tolerably well reconciles them to its principle.

The most successful answer to the measure will be to question its utility. The whole taxes fall far short of the expenditures of the nation. Suppose the debt sponged off, and all the products of the present taxes applied to necessary expenses, how shall the deficiency be made up? By new loans. Shall the British chancellor of the exchequer with the sponge in one hand, hold out a subscription paper in the other? Who would lend, or escape the madhouse if he did? If loans could be obtained, a new national debt would be scored up, at the rate of thirty-five or forty millions a year; and as soon as the size of the debt had begun to terrify some, by its effect to cripple the energies of government, and to tire others by the pressure of taxes, it must be sponged off again. Be it remembered the violent remedies of great evils are, almost always, aggravations of those evils. If the minister, unable or unwilling to borrow, should raise taxes within the year, equal to the expenditures of war, what becomes of the plea of necessity?

On the whole, is it not right that the property of a nation should defend its liberty, and is this to be done to the extent that the public safety may require, unless the government can obtain loans in its necessity, that it will provide for in its prosperity?

A great public debt is no doubt a great evil, but the loss of liberty and independence is one infinitely greater. It is some alleviation of that evil for any government, for all are prone enough to become corrupt, habitually to guide its measures and its counsels, by the experience that its good faith is its good policy. It ought to make men better to contemplate the example of a state, tried and tempted by adversity, and groaning under the load of taxes, yet still faithful to its engagements, and enjoying an ample resource in the confidence of its creditors, by deserving their confidence and keeping their property sacred from violation. Such a state gives an illustrious lesson of morality to its subjects. It fulfills the great duty of all governments which is to protect property. This is not all. It will seem, to some practical men, still more to the purpose, that such a state will have the control, in the extreme exigencies of the public affairs, of the last shilling of private property. Such is the spectacle of the British government.

BY THIS DAY'S MAIL.

NEW YORK, May 22.

London papers to the 9th of April, inclusive, have been received at Boston on Sunday by the ship Galen, in 37 days. They announce the arrival of a number of British vessels from Embden, &c. some with and some without cargoes. Also many Prussian vessels sent in by the cruisers. A flag of truce arrived at Dover on the 7th from Boulogne. A paper of the 9th contains a note, stating that the requisite communication has been made to the foreign ministers at the courts of Great Britain by Mr. Fox, apprising them that the Ems, the Elbe, the Weser and Trave have been put in a state of blockade. The trade of Hamburg, of Embden, Lubec and Bremen, and of those places carried on through them from principal channels, is thus cut off. Much speculation continues to be excited by the arrival of the last flag of truce. But no more was known of the matter than the fact of the arrival of dispatches. This forms all the data on which the opinions of the public respecting the nature of the communications are built. Many incline to think that something of peace, as well as the exchange of prisoners, is in agitation.

Captain Egery, of the brig Patty, left at Tortola the British government armed brig Netley, captain Carr, to sail on the 2d instant for Antigua, and to proceed from thence (after taking in six months provisions) to join the squadron under Miranda.

Captain Hinton, from Trinidad, informs us that dispatches had been received there from Barbadoes, announcing the capture of the outward bound Cork fleet by a French squadron. He adds, that, according to report, Miranda had effected a landing, and taken Carraccas, assisted in his enterprise by the English.

The landing of Miranda at Carraccas is confirmed by captain Strange, of the brig Fair American from Guadaloupe, who informs us that the intelligence was brought by a French privateer from the coast of Carraccas, with the addition that he had been defeated by the Spaniards.

The ship Huron, Clarke, has performed her voyage from Savannah to Nantes, from thence to New Bedford, and from New Bedford to New York in 91 days. Capt. Clarke left Nantes the 20th April, at which time it was reported that a French army was on its march to Denmark, for the purpose of shutting up the Baltic. Markets dull.

May 23.

Captain Wynkoop, of the schooner Sperry Baker, informs us it was reported at Porto Rico that on general Miranda's effecting a landing at Carraccas, the Spanish governor applied for assistance to general Ferrand at the city of St. Domingo, who promised him a reinforcement of 500 troops if he would send a convoy to protect them.

Arrived, the schooner Splath, Ferguson, (mentioned yesterday) in 23 days from St. Jago de Cuba. Left, brig Fame, Thompson, from Cape Francois for Philadelphia, sent in by a French privateer; brig Jefferson, Lewis, for Philadelphia in 2 weeks; brig Superior do. in a week; sch'r Experiment, do. in 2 weeks. Passengers, Geo. Huxham, Thomas Dier, and James Oswald, who belonged to the British ship Imperial, of Liverpool, which vessel was in the Jamaica homeward bound fleet, and captured by the French privateers L'Esperance, and Proteleur. The same privateers also captured out of the same fleet, on the 19th April, the ship Ceres, of London; but both of them were afterwards retaken by the Atlas 74. The above persons were robbed of everything, and landed at Cumberland harbour, where they were afterwards marched to St. Jago de Cuba, and while there, the Henry, of London, belonging to the fleet, was brought in by a French privateer, the crew having mutined, flogged the captain, and ran her out of the fleet. The Jamaica fleet consisted of 100 sail, under command of the Malabar of 50 guns, Atlas of 74, Echo sloop, and 2 or 3 others. May 8, off Crooked Island, captain Ferguson spoke the above fleet, 26 of which were missing; 6 of them after having been captured were retaken and sent to Jamaica. PHILADELPHIA, May 21.

Yesterday arrived the ship George, captain Humburg, from Batavia, but last from the Cape of Good Hope, where she was detained some time by an embargo. Through the attention of the supercargo we are furnished with the following minutes made on the voyage.

In the beginning of January last, a British squadron consisting of three line of battle ships, one 50 gun ship, two frigates and one gun-brig, under the command of commodore sir Home Popham arrived off the Cape, with thirty-seven transport ships, containing from 8 to 10,000 troops. On the 6th and 7th the troops began to land, during which time the gun brig was sailing in and out the bay to engage the attention of the enemy. The Dutch governor Janssen, with a regiment of Waldeckers, consisting of 500, some French troops, and a couple of Dutch regiments, altogether amounting to 1600, opposed the landing of the British troops, which they had commenced on the west side of the bay, a constant fire was kept up on both sides. In the first part of the landing the Dutch troops having some field pieces, played with great havoc among the invaders, and it was said the English suffered very considerably, but their forces momentarily augmenting by the swarms of reinforcements landing on the beach, became too potent for the feeble enemy. The Dutch consequently retreated towards the town: the British by this time had landed a sufficient supply of cannon and ammunition, which they properly applied to the Dutch whilst in pursuit of them. Part of the troops took refuge in the castle, and others in the valleys.

The contending parties on the 9th again met, when a furious engagement ensued, the Dutch governor Janssen displayed the indefatigable courage and bravery of a heroic general; he placed his principal dependence on the regiment of Waldeckers; they, intimidated by the formidable force that they found themselves engaged with, gave up all prospect of success and began to give way. The general by this movement, perceiving himself with the smallest part of his army abandoned, was obliged to sacrifice his intrepid intentions, and take the most prudent step of retreating with all possible speed: he flew among the Hottentot mountains, but being pursued by the British, the remnant of his army were taken prisoners. This battle continued about twenty-five minutes. It is said that the loss of the English in killed and wounded was proportionably greater than that of the Dutch, but no authentic account could be obtained. On the 10th the Cape town capitulated to the British. A regiment of Hottentots that fought in behalf of the Dutch conducted themselves with distinguished bravery throughout the whole engagement, retaining their ground until the last moment. Gen. B. command of the expedition, went in pursuit of the governor, whom they found tented in the interior, refused to surrender, and upon such a proposal, which after some time, in part agreed to. Obedience to terms of surrender of the colony, much in favor of the honor of governor, stipulated in one of the conditions, that in consideration of the conduct of the Dutch, embarked and sent to the expense of the war, and shall not be considered as war.

The commander in chief is sir David Bear, governor of the colony, command are generals Popham. The squadron Diadem of 64 guns (captain Kin), of 64 guns, captain R. of the line, name not known, captain Donald, of 50 guns, captain E. of 16 guns, commander Keith.

Governor Janssen embarked the 4th, and March for Amsterdam, after the capture of the colony was laid upon all the continued two months, to prevent the intrusion of the Cape being a colony, as they were determined the arrival of the French, who, under the impression in the possession of had sent in two British had captured off the ship alternately stretched in vessels of every they met with. In March they chased the La Volaniere; consternation among a terrible uneasiness the batteries and manned, the officers in their private dress men should discover their red coats, and a fleet. The frigates in the Bay, and ed to the boarding of the British ships; they felt the British ships, captured prisoners in the Cape; (they were in a state, most accurate. This frigate the line, parted company off the island of Good Hope. The attention of the English of confusion, the trenchments along the clamations, prohibiting pain of death, from or any other kind of or accidentally falling expected enemy transports was suspended whether it was advantage for the end with the situation of Many American vessels for refreshments, and themselves completely embargo. Petition handed to the governor were always replied to terms. The present them to renew their those vessels bound liberty to depart, and on the 12th March.

Alexandria Daily Advertiser.

MONDAY, MAY 26.

Extracts from a Journal on board brig Act... ive, in Carlisle bay, and on the passage... homeward. &c.

April 18th. By a neutral from Cayenne... intelligence was brought of four Spanish... frigates having put in there to water, being... on their way down to the Carracas coast... to oppose, it was said, the operations of... general Miranda.

19th. Two heavy sloops of war were... dispatched from Carlisle bay to reinforce... the British cruisers on that coast.

20th. A neutral arrived with the intel... ligence of having been spoke by four large

French frigates, to the eastward of the... island, and so near to it, that before he lost... sight of them, he made the high lands of... Barbadoes quite plain. Admiral Cochrane... immediately dispatched three frigates and... a heavy sloop of war in search of them.

24th. A neutral from Alexandria arriv... ed in the bay who informs that he was... boarded by the said four French frigates, in... the latitude of Desada, and that they pre... tended to him to be Englishmen: they... were steering west, under easy sail. That... in a few hours after losing sight of them... he fell in with the Canada 74, and two fr... igates, who immediately crowded all sail af... ter them.

27th. A packet boat arrived from Do... minica with some private dispatches to the... governor; various conjectures were put... upon them; but it was chiefly believed they... contained information of an expedition be... ing fitting out in Guadalupe, and that 7000... troops were in readiness for embarkation;... that orders had been issued for baking an... unusual quantity of bread; and no doubt... remained but that men of war were expect... ed, of which the above mentioned four fr... igates were the forerunners. The Wolve... rine sloop of war was dispatched immedi... ately express to England. The same pack... et boat brings the news of the French fr... igates having made their escape—one into... Point Petre, and three into the Saints;... where they were closely blockaded; and as... the Saints produce no fresh water, it was... expected they would soon be under the ne... cessity of giving themselves up for the want... of that necessary article. The Saints is... strongly fortified, and secure from attack... but is entirely dependant on rain, or Gua... daloupe, for water.

By the last packet from England news... was received that orders had been given to... release all impressed American seamen. Admiral... Cochrane's orders prior to that were to... impress no American seamen that had... proper protections. During our stay in... Carlisle bay several very hot impress... ments took place, but the Americans were... not meddled with or molested.

By a running ship arrived at Surinam is... brought the important news, that in lat... 29, 30, N. long. 18, W. he fell in with sir... John B. Warren, and the squadron under... his command, having in his possession the... famous admiral Linois, and his fine ship... the Marengo, together with the superb... frigate le Belle Pool, after his harassing... the British trade for years in India, and... cutting to pieces their Guinea trade, this... last season, on the coast of Africa. He... was on his way home to France, and was... supposed to have a vast treasure on board.

Two of the second London provision... fleet had arrived, the rest were hourly... expected.

It was thought in Bridgetown that these... four French frigates had been laying in... wait for this fleet, but a remarkable strong... lee current had been running for several... days, which had, no doubt, drifted them... unexpectedly too near the land, of course... it was unnecessary for them to remain any... longer on that station, after being once... discovered.

Mr. Randolph's famous speech had made... its appearance in the Bridgetown Mercury... and had given great satisfaction to the in... habitants of Barbadoes.

The last fleet from London and Cork had... so completely glutted and gorged the market... in Barbadoes, that not one particle of American... produce was wanted, except flour, and... even that they were very indifferent about... and only give their own price for. Their... warehouses are full of beef, pork, tongues... rounds, hams, tripe, butter, cheese, porter... potatoes, fish, loaf sugar, teas, and in fact... every article of living that England or Ireland... produces; also a very large supply of biscuit... for the navy.

Irish mess pork offering at 20 dollars per... barrel, beef in proportion; mess pork sel... ling at 24 dollars, cash price, by retail.

Prices of American produce in Barbadoes, viz.

Flour 9 dollars, dull.
Crackers 5 1-2 to 6, cash price, market... glutted.
Beef, pork and fish nothing.
Corn nothing, by retail 45 to 50 cents.
Tobacco 7, 8 to 10 dollars, according to... quality, market stocked.

Boards 25 dollars per M.
Hoops 40 per M.
Rum in Barbadoes 40 cents, molasses 30, sugars 5 75, coffee none.

A great many flour loaded vessels had... called to try the markets, and sailed to the... leeward; captain Butts, from Alexandria... arrived the 24th, and sailed the 25th for... Grenada.

Captain Bartlett, from Bayonne, arrived at... Boston, informs, that Louis Bonaparte has been... declared Sovereign of Holland by a decree of the... government.

SPANISH AFFAIRS.

The following extract was communicated in a let... ter from Major Sparks, commandant at Fort... Adams, and dated the 7th ult. to a gentleman... in Fincastle.

Extract of a letter from captain Bowman of our... army, dated Nachitoches, 18th March, 1806.

"An officer came in on the evening of the 11th... inf. with dispatches from the governor general at... St. Antoine—he was halted at our picket, and... not permitted to enter the fort or town; and... early next morning he received his answer, and... set out immediately; the same day captain John... Ron marched with lieut. Smith, ensign Hatchet... and 65 men towards the Sabine; this movement... was determined on in consequence of information... which cannot be doubted, that the Spaniards had... reinforced at Nacogdoches, to upwards of 400... cavalry, and were marching to resume the position... they were so lately removed from by our troops... We have not heard of their meeting yet, but... calculate they will meet this day, and it appears... that an engagement is unavoidable. They are... greatly superior in numbers, therefore it would... be premature to risk an opinion as to the result... Some Americans have been these two days trying... to bring about a meeting to volunteer their ser... vices in the immediate defence, and they will be... furnished with arms from the public magazine."

From Cincinnati, April 14.

A letter from the town of Washington, Mis... sissippi, dated the 18th February says, "that a... party of 500 Spanish horse, had arrived to rein... force the post on this side of the Sabine, that a... severe engagement had taken place between them... and captain Porter, and that the Spaniards had... been routed."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman residing at... the Mississippi territory, Washington county, to his... friend in Savannah.

"Our country is in high spirits—all in arms;... I have the honor to command a horse compa... ny, in which there are about forty of the brave... injured citizens of this country, who have suffer... ed every thing from the hands of Spain. We on... ly wait for orders to raise the hand of vengeance... against their devoted heads. In Mobile they... are making every preparation against our attack;... but they cannot escape our vengeance."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in New... Orleans, dated April 19, to his friend in this... city.

"We have nothing new to communicate from... this quarter, except an increasing disaffection a... mongst the natives. Our harmless congress seem... peaceably disposed as usual, let whatever dangers or... insults threaten; and by their amicable meek... nesses, this country, the richest and by far the... most valuable part of the United States, is left... totally unprotected, and liable to incur all the... evils resulting from the machinations of discon... tented citizens, and the invasion of a jealous... neighboring foe. The effective number of all the... United States troops in all lower Louisiana, does... not amount to 500 men. What a pity that such a... pusillanimous government should possess such a... country as this! They do not deserve it. Their... unpardonable neglect has drawn on the admini... stration and on the government in general, the... sovereign contempt of its inhabitants. Pardon the... severity of these remarks. They flow from a... lively sense of our exiled and unprotected situ... ation. We will send a file of papers containing... the extraordinary proceedings of our heterogen... eous legislature. A bill is now before the house... to introduce or rather to make the French lan... guage the only one to be used in all public busi... ness; and some very influential members have... gone so far as to say in private circles and cau... ses that the knowledge of the English language by... a native of the country ought to be consid... ered as sufficient to disqualify him for office. A... law has also been talked of to prevent foreigners... from marrying natives of the country, under a... residence of seven years. These things are ridi... culous in themselves. They serve to show the ig... norance of their authors, but they also serve to... show their inveterate and irreconcilable disaffec... tion towards the government of the United States... From these considerations, and knowing that a... large portion of the natives of the country... would immediately rally to the standard of any... invading foe, and having our ears and our... feelings daily insulted by the grossest and most... contemptuous abuse of our native country and... its government, good and happy beyond a parallel... in the history of man, we do not believe that our... remarks are too severe respecting the extreme re... missness of congress.

The great events that are passing in Europe are... strangely astonishing, but as you are no doubt in... possession of later dates than we are, we shall... make no comments thereon, except the too great... probability that the commencement of a general... peace there, will be but the commencement of... trouble here."

Rich Kanahwa Bottom Lands, For Sale or Exchange.

THE Subscriber offers for sale, or exchange for lands or other real property on the east side of the Blue Ridge, about 7000 acres of RICH BOTTOM LAND, on the Great Kanahwa River, and on both sides thereof opposite and below the mouth of Puketollico Creek, in the State of Virginia, 25 miles from Point Pleasant, (in the county town of Mason county) and 12 miles from the town of Kanahwa county, and adjoining the lands of the late General Washington. They were surveyed at the same time with those lands in the year 1772, and are held under the same titles, viz. Old Military Rights—which are unquestionable.

The Lands are of the very first quality, the Bottoms in many places a mile wide; they have been lately refurrowed and divided into lots containing from 150 to 350 acres each, for the accommodation of purchasers, each lot fronting on the river, and extending back from thence to the hills, which afford a most extensive range for stock, which can never be interrupted. One hundred acres therefore of this rich bottom, with advantages, would make a good settlement. The great [Virginia] State road leading to the west of Ohio and Kentucky, passes by and through these lands, which being on a fine navigable river will command a ready and high price for produce to the emigrants to the western country by land and water. Their situation gives their occupants choice of the western markets, as produce may be transported to the river, and the neighborhood abundance of iron, coal, lime, and mill seats; so that there is no western country which holds out more to persons desirous of emigrating. A particular description of these lands, the several lots, their situation, &c. price, may be had by application to Mr. WILLIAM CRAIK, the surveying of them, or to the

Twenty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY, from Captain John Henderson, near Debenport's forge, in Spotsylvania county, on the 13th day of April last,

A Negro Man, named Philip.

HE was raised by James Hurst, of Jefferson county, Virginia, and was put in the hands of Henry Gummel, jun. and sold by him to Henderson, and by said Henderson to the subscriber.

PHILIP is a very artful fellow, of black complexion, about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches high, 22 years of age, looks sulky when spoken to; moves briskly, and tells a plausible story when examined; he is very well made for his height. The clothes he wore when he went off were, a white kersey jacket and trousers, also a brown cloth jacket. He was raised in Loudon county near the mouth of Sugar Land Run, where it is more than probable he has been lurking for some time, as he was seen in that neighborhood about three weeks past. Any person that will apprehend the said fellow and deliver him to me, in Hanover county, about 32 miles above Richmond, shall receive the above reward, or Ten Dollars to secure him in jail so that I get him again. Should the said fellow be put to jail, a letter sent by post to the Richmond post office, will be attended to by the subscriber.

As some person has reported that the house is liable for back rents, the following certificate, from Mr. Nathaniel C. Stephen Cooke.

I hereby acknowledge, to have received the ground-rents due on a lot, in the town of Alexandria, on Fairfax Street, leased of me by Dr. Stephen Cooke, up to the 3d day of February 1805.

Twenty Dollars Reward,

WILL be given for apprehending and securing in jail, a young mulatto man slave, named ANDREW. He was hired by me last year to Mr. Joseph Thomas, who keeps the middle ferry opposite to Alexandria, and absconded from that place about the latter end of August last. He is about 23 years of age, 5 feet 8 or 9 inches high, luffy and well made, has short curled hair, and is frequently subject to have several large pimples in his face. He is reckoned to be a sensible fellow, of an easy agreeable address for a man in his low sphere of life. As he has not been heard of by me since his elopement, I suspect he has had the address to ship himself as a freeman on board some vessel either at Alexandria or Baltimore. Whoever takes him up and secures him in any jail, shall receive from me the above reward, as soon as due information thereof is given to me or to Doctor N. P. Cause, at Port Tobacco.

Thirty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber this day, after having feloniously carried off, on the night of the 20th inst. a large trunk and chest of wearing apparel and other articles (which have since been recovered) a Mulatto servant slave, named MOSES, who calls himself Moses Gaines. He is 45 years of age, about 5 feet 8 inches high, tolerably well formed, has a concealed countenance, is very artful and villainous, and may impose himself as a freeman. He had on when he went off, a green cloth short coat with yellow metal buttons, a white striped Marcellus vest, olive colored corduroy breeches, white cotton stockings, and shoes; all his other clothes have been secured, but he may change these he wore away. He is however pretty generally known to be my slave, having lived in my service and travelled about with me for the last sixteen years. I will pay the above reward to any person who will bring him home or secure him in any jail so that I get him again.
